		Q & A
02.10pm - 03.10pm	International Real Estate Society - 2023 IRES PANEL at PRRES - The Relevance of our Academic Research. Industry practitioners often criticize academic real estate research. While it promises fresh wisdom on important topics, many of our published papers, they claim, become so overloaded with formulaic statistical analyses (often in compliance with traditional peer-review criteria) that the final outcomes lose their impact. Is this fair? Do our institutions and journals need to re-think their review criteria? Do researchers need to look beyond career advancement goals? Or is it just a case of awareness, communication and forging stronger links between academics and practitioners?
