

EXPERIMENT

Through observation and by talking to people, we can learn a great deal about what people want in public spaces and can (hopefully) put this knowledge to work in creating places that shape livable communities.

After William H. Whyte