

Supporting families when a parent of dependent children is at end of life with cancer

WHEN Friday 7th October 2022
09.00 – 14.15

WHERE Ulster University
Belfast campus | York Street | Belfast
Room: BD07-004

RSVP Eventbrite Registration
for this free event (NB Places are limited)

This event will focus on family-centred cancer care when a parent of dependent children (<18 years old) is at end of life with cancer.

Those attending will learn about:

- the challenges and support needs of families when a parent of dependent children is at end of life with cancer,
- how and when health and social care professionals can support families who have a parent of dependent children at end of life with cancer,
- the lived experience from a bereaved parent, and
- the services and organisations that provide care and support to families when a parent of dependent children is at end of life with cancer.

The keynote presentation will be delivered by Prof. Denice Sheehan, Professor of Nursing at Kent State University, US.

Individuals who have a professional role in providing care and support to families when a parent of dependent children is at end of life with cancer are encouraged to attend.